Outdoor power supplies are increasingly essential in Nepal due to frequent power cuts (up to 6.8 hours daily in some regions) and growing adventure tourism . Modern portable power stations are designed to handle voltage fluctuations (110–240V) and operate efficiently in cold climates, making them suitable for high-altitude areas like Everest Base Camp . Lithium batteries in these devices typically last 5–8 years with proper care .

Buying Tips for Nepali Users
• Capacity Selection: Choose a power station based on the number of devices and appliances you plan to run. For group tours, units with 1000W output can charge multiple smartphones simultaneously .

• Cold-Climate Performance: Ensure the battery is rated for low temperatures if used at high altitudes .

• Solar Compatibility: Solar input support is highly recommended for off-grid adventures .

• Local Availability: Kathmandu-based factories and retailers offer competitive pricing and warranty options, often 20–30% cheaper than imported units .
Where to Buy
• Gadget House Nepal: Offers the 90000mAh 300W portable power station with fast charging and multiple output options .

• Daraz Nepal: Wide selection of power supply units for online purchase .

• Local Manufacturers: EK SOLAR and other Kathmandu-based factories provide modular and solar-compatible outdoor power systems .

• Power Solution Twenty Four–Seven Pvt Ltd: Provides repair, maintenance, and sales of outdoor power solutions across Nepal . By selecting a high-capacity, solar-compatible, and portable power station, Nepali users can ensure reliable energy for camping, emergencies, and off-grid living while benefiting from local support and warranty services.
