Key Takeaways

Hollow-core fiber optic connectors typically range from $50 to $300 per unit, depending on type, specifications, and supplier. Hollow-core fiber optic connectors are specialized components designed to connect hollow-core fibers to standard single-mode fibers or optical systems, minimizing insertion loss and maintaining low-latency transmission. Prices vary significantly based on connector type, insertion loss, return loss, and manufacturer.

Standard adapters or connectors for research and industrial applications often start around $50–$100 per unit, while high-performance connectors with ultra-low insertion loss (as low as 0.05 dB) or custom specifications can cost $200–$300 or more.

Factors Affecting Price

Connector Type: LC, SC, FC, or custom hollow-core adapters influence cost. Performance Specifications: Low insertion loss, low return loss, and high laser damage thresholds increase price. Quantity: Bulk orders may reduce per-unit cost, while single units are more expensive.

Supplier: Leading suppliers like YOFC, DigiKey, Mouser, and Alibaba offer different pricing tiers and shipping options. Where to Purchase YOFC: Offers hollow-core fiber adapters and cables with low insertion loss, suitable for high-speed, low-latency networks.

Digi

Key and Mouser: Provide a wide range of fiber optic connectors, including single-mode and multimode options, with pricing and same-day shipping. Alibaba: Bulk suppliers of hollow optical fibers and connectors, often for industrial or research applications. For precise pricing, it is recommended to contact suppliers directly with your required specifications, as hollow-core fiber connectors are often customized for wavelength, core size, and application.
